Presented by Depot Training Team

May 20, 2009

11 a.m. EDT

(registration at 10:30 a.m.)

Are you tired of getting zillions of hits from Google when you are trying to add something rich for your course to engage your students?

Are you frustrated with not having the time or not knowing where to start when you are thinking about redesigning your course?

Are you concerned about the textbook costs for your students?

Come and join us for a fun session where we learn how the Kentucky Learning Depot can help you save time and money in teaching your course.

We hope you walk away from this session knowing that there is a statewide support for a learning community to help you create prepared learners.

For registration information, contact your campus Faculty Development representative or call 502.573.1555, Ext. 259
